

The LemonAide Story

When Lesa Moser began her chemo treatments for ovarian cancer, two of her friends decided to visit her during her first treatment and take a gift to let her know they were thinking of her. They purchased a small clown with bright yellow hair in the hospital gift shop at Colquitt Regional Medical Center in Moultrie, Georgia. On the way up to the treatment room, one of them named him LemonAide because of his bright yellow hair. They told Lesa that he was to accompany her to all of her treatments. After she completed the treatments Sharon Herndon (one of the two friends) asked how LemonAide was doing. She replied that he was fine and that she had decided to pass him along when someone else needed him. Shockingly, a few months later she passed him along to Sharon and LemonAide went with her to all of her treatments for breast cancer. In a few short months, LemonAide was passed to the fourth patient, Karin Kastetter, in Asheville, North Carolina. The friends added a cape to the clown and had the names of each person who had taken him to treatments and the date of their diagnosis put on the cape.

One day while waiting for her doctor at Phoebe Putney Cancer Center in Albany, Georgia, Sharon asked her husband if he thought she should market LemonAide and give the money to fight cancer. He thought it was a great idea. After a conversation with Lesa they formed LemonAide's Friends, Inc. a nonprofit 501(3)(c) corporation. After expenses are paid, they plan to donate all the money raised from the sale of the LemonAide clowns and other products to fight cancer.

LemonAide is not just any ordinary clown. Since cancer affects not only the body but also the emotions LemonAide is on a special mission to give love and support to those with cancer as well as to serve as an encourager to help patients maintain a positive mental and emotional attitude. LemonAide will be offered for sale in hospital gift shops, cancer treatment centers etc.

Cancer Facts:

Cancer is a group of diseases that is characterized by uncontrolled growth and spread of abnormal cells. If this growth and spread are left uncontrolled it can result in death. The treatments for cancer are surgery, radiation, chemotherapy, hormones, and immunotherapy.

It is estimated by the National Cancer Institute that approximately 9.8 million American people who have a history of cancer were alive in January 2001. Approximately 1,372,910 new cases of cancer are expected to be diagnosed in 2005 and 570,280 Americans are expected to die from this disease during this year. That is an average of 1,500 per day.

Will you be one of those statistics? Cancer does not discriminate. It strikes all ages, all sexes, and all races. Please help LemonAide's Friends, Inc., a nonprofit 501 (3) (c) organization whose mission is to fight cancer, make a difference. LemonAide's Friends raises money through fundraisers, donations and the sale of the LemonAide clown dolls, silicone bracelets, and other products currently under development. Donations can be made in honor of or in memory of someone. All donations are tax deductible. Please help make a difference for yourself and those you love!

Mission Statement:

It is our mission to help find a cure for cancer and to help cancer patients in need by raising funds through various projects associated with LemonAide the Clown. Since cancer affects not only the body but also the emotions our products are intended to bring a ray of sunshine to both children and adults who are going through cancer treatments. All money raised will be given to fund these efforts after expenses are paid.

Founders Statements:

Sharon Herndon, President and CEO

On Christmas Eve of 2002, my life changed forever. That is when I received my cancer diagnosis. I had very little in-depth knowledge of cancer and how it is treated but I had to learn. I also soon learned how frightening cancer is and how much uncertainty a cancer patient goes through. I realized the importance of the support of family and friends. As the days passed I realized I wanted to do something to give back and to help others through this journey. The Lemon-Aide clown I had given my friend Lesa and that she had given back to me seemed to be the perfect item to use to provide comfort for someone dealing with cancer. She and I together have formed the non-profit 501(3)(c) organization we named Lemon-Aide's Friends, Inc. It is my goal and my dream to make this organization successful, to have it continue as a functioning organization until there is a cure and to raise enough money in order to truly make a difference in the fight against cancer.

Lesa Moser, Co-Founder and Honorary Board Member

As one of the founders of Lemon-Aide's Friends, Inc., I wanted to do something to help make cancer a curable disease and I wanted to help raise funds to make this possible. I also wanted to do something to help people who have been diagnosed with cancer feel as if they were not alone during this frightening journey. Lemon-Aide is a friend...given by friends to remind a patient that they are loved and certainly not alone.

P. Buckley Moss

Patricia Buckley was born in the Richmond Borough of New York City. In grade school, she was perceived as a poor student, a circumstance probably attributable to dyslexia. One of her teachers determined that she was artistically gifted. Her mother enrolled her in an extraordinary school for girls in downtown Manhattan known as the Washington Irving High School for Fine Arts. There Pat's artistic abilities were taken seriously. In 1951 Pat received a scholarship to New York's Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art. She studied there for four years and specialized in fine arts and graphic design. Soon after leaving the school she married Jack Moss who was a chemical engineer. In 1964 her husband's work took his family to Waynesboro, Virginia. By then they had five children and a sixth one on the way. It was while living in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia that she came to appreciate and to know the deeply religious Amish and Mennonite people. Soon she was incorporating them in her art work. In 1967 she won her first major art show prize, a one-person museum exhibition. This exhibition encouraged her to start seriously marketing her work. The uniqueness of her work generated by her subject matter won her wide spread recognition. Thousands of collectors in the United States, Europe, and Japan have come to recognize and treasure her work. In 1987, the P. Buckley Moss Society was established. This Society now has some 38 active chapters and a membership of approximately 15,000. In 1989 the P. Buckley Moss Museum opened in Waynesboro, Virginia. Today the Museum attracts approximately 45,000 visitors per year. For many who know her and are familiar with her life, she is "THE PEOPLE'S ARTIST".

Connie Stevens

In a career that has spanned over thirty years, Connie Stevens has gained worldwide popularity and recognition as a multi-talented performer, producer, and most recently, as a major force in the business world. She has successfully transcended the entertainment gamut from Motion Picture Star, Television Star, Broadway Star, Recording Artist, to the concert stage and then on to develop a successful cosmetic empire.

Connie has proven herself in the business world by creating Forever Spring, a cosmetic empire that has spawned over 300 products that include skin care, make up, hair care items, and fragrances among others. She recently designed and opened the Garden Sanctuary, an executive day spa and boutique in Los Angeles which will offer clients a spa menu, an elegant retail boutique, and other amenities in an elegant private garden-like environment.

Connie's Forever Spring is one of the most talked about and popular cosmetic skin care product lines in the industry. Connie Steven's Forever Spring has amassed a clientele of over 3 million women across the country and earnings from the Home Shopping Network alone grossed over one billion dollars. Considered one of the top 500 female executives in the United States, Connie has owned and operated her company over for 14 years.

She has devoted much of her time and influence to help those less fortunate and her work with Native American Indians is widely recognized. Connie's project Windfeather of 12 years has enabled the awarding of 83 college scholarships for Native American youths, the delivery of surplus goods to Indian reservations nationwide and summer camps for Native American children who have never left the reservation.

Stevens, the filmmaker, completed producing and directing A Healing, a documentary dedicated to the women, and the young warriors they attended to, who served in the U.S./Vietnam conflict. Proceeds from this documentary will go to several veterans' charities. In addition, she has made landmark strides with Dignity in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, helping the mentally and physically challenged to become working members of the community. Hosting her annual Celebrity Ski Extravaganza, Connie has enabled the development of programs and a facility to house and educate these people, newly dedicated as the Connie Stevens Center for Independent Living. She is now involved in plans to build the first resort hotel for children and young adults with special needs.

For her tireless work and support of others, Connie has been honored and received the coveted 1991 Lady of Humanities award from the Shriners Hospital, and Humanitarian of the Year by the Sons of Italy in Washington, D.C. She also was honored by the Vietnam Veterans Association of America as well as receiving The Decoration for Distinguished Civilian Service from the United States Armed Forces, which is the highest honor that can be bestowed on a civilian.

Hugh B. Ward

Rev. Ward received his B.A. in Biology from Asbury College. He worked in rural churches in Kentucky and Mississippi for a time and joined the US Marines in 1966. Following Boot Camp at Parris Island, Vietnamese Language School and Intelligence School, he served in the Republic of Vietnam from 1968 until 1972. He attended Columbia Theological Seminary from 1972 until 1975 and did his graduate work at Emory University from 1975 until 1979. During those years he served at Fairview Presbyterian Church in Lawrenceville, Georgia. From 1979 until 1988 he was pastor at Columbia Presbyterian Church in Decatur, Georgia. In 1989 Hugh accepted the position of pastor at the First Presbyterian Church in Moultrie, Georgia. He retired from this position in 2011.

To Help:Sponsor Lemon-Aide's Friends:

Being a corporate sponsor of the Lemon-Aide's Friends Project is a wonderful way for a corporation to show their concern for the needs of society especially for the segment of the population dealing with cancer.

Volunteer:

Become a volunteer and help spread the word about the Lemon-Aide Project or raise funds to help in the fight against cancer.

Donate:

Make a contribution to help fight cancer or give a donation in honor of or memory of someone. All donations are tax deductible. Donations may also be designated as a contribution to the special "Jill Fund" to be used to pay the expenses for the project.

To sponsor, volunteer, or donate please contact Sharon Herndon at 229-985-8090 Monday through Saturday between 10 A.M. and 5 P.M.

Distribution of Funds

Lemon-Aides Friends, Inc. plans to donate monies raised through fundraisers and the sale of the Lemon-Aide products after expenses are paid to specific research projects, to cancer treatment centers, and to cancer patients in need.

The Medical Advisors on the Board of Directors will make the decisions as to how funds will be allocated. All requests for donations will be considered. These decisions will be made by the end of the fiscal year.

The “Jill” Fund

The “Jill” Fund is a special fund established in memory of Jill Lazarus. The money contributed to this fund will be used to pay the expenses for the Lemon-Aide project so that money raised from the sales of the Lemon-Aide products may be donated to make a difference in the fight against cancer.
